Please check your information!

This directory is the result of the partnership that exists between The Livestock Conservancy and its breeders and product providers. While we try to provide accurate and current listings of breeders, the animals they breed, and the rare breed products they provide, we sometimes find our listings in need of updating. You can help the Conservancy improve the quality of our directory by checking your listing for accuracy, and reporting any changes in your contact information or changes in the animals you raise and the rare breed products you provide. To make changes, log into your account on the Conservancy website: www.livestockconservancy.org, or complete the update form in the back of the directory and mail to: PO Box 477, Pittsboro, NC 27312

Thanks for your support.

THE LIVESTOCK CONSERVANCY™

Dear Breeders and Consumers,

Conservation is achieved by you – the people who raise and breed rare livestock and poultry and the people who buy their products.

You are the link between farms of the past and consumers of today. You understand that heritage breeds are vital for sustainably managed farms and ranches because these animals are hardy, forage efficient, and climate adapted. You provide and buy nutritious, delicious heritage breed products, and ensure our agricultural future.

A good experience starts here, with The Livestock Conservancy's 2023 Directory. Keep this resource guide handy throughout the year to find:

- breeding stock to start or expand your herd or flock,
- fiber in all its forms for spinning, knitting, weaving, felting, and other fiber projects,
- ranchers raising the same breed that you do,
- eggs, milk, and meat that comes from farms you can get to know personally,
- farm mentors,
- informative articles,
- contact information for breed associations,
- pillows, blankets, hides, pelts, fleece, horns, and more!

The connections you make to one another through the printed and online directories forge lasting relationships that save rare breeds. Encourage your fellow farmers and breed association members to list their products with us, too. Like you, The Livestock Conservancy is more committed than ever to conserving rare breeds and working together. The future looks bright.

Sincerely yours,

Alison G. Martin
Executive Director

“...when the last individual of a race of living things breathes no more, another Heaven and another Earth must pass before such a one can be again.”

Terms of Use

The Livestock Conservancy Rare Breeds Directory and Products Resource Guide is compiled and published by The Livestock Conservancy as a reference and networking source for those looking for rare breeds and rare breed products.

The directory and/or any of its data, listings, or other constituent elements may not be republished, resold or duplicated, in whole or in part, for commercial or any other purposes, or for purposes of compiling mailing lists without obtaining the expressed permission of The Livestock Conservancy.

Although The Livestock Conservancy undertakes great efforts to keep the information contained in the Directory accurate, all account holders are responsible for keeping their information up to date. The information is not guaranteed and no responsibility is assumed for errors or omissions.

Privacy Policy

The Livestock Conservancy does not provide its contact list to anyone when the intended use is for personal, commercial, or non-mission related purposes. Currently, the only approved reasons for distributing contact information are as follows:

- The Livestock Conservancy provides breeder information to all members and directory participants in the form of the Rare Breeds Directory and Products Resource Guide. Some participants have opted to be in the online directory with the understanding that their information will be made available on the organization's website to the general public.
- The Livestock Conservancy provides lists of breeders to inquirers for those breeds for which The Livestock Conservancy maintains the registry and for which there is an inactive or nonexistent breed association.
- The Livestock Conservancy provides portions of its contact list to organizations with compatible missions for the purpose of promoting our mission and facilitating networking among supporters.
- In all cases, the sharing of contact information is evaluated on a case-by-case basis and account holders who have requested NOT to have their names shared are edited out of any information sharing.

Breeder & Product Provider Integrity

Satisfied customers are your best advertisers and can go a long way toward promotion and conservation of rare breeds. On the other hand, it only takes one bad experience to generate ill feelings about a particular breed, its breeders, product providers, and The Livestock Conservancy. Buyers expect a high degree of business ethics from the breeders and product providers listed in the Rare breeds Directory and Products Resource Guide and we encourage providers to act responsibly and ethically in their marketing and business dealings with prospective buyers. Consumers also have a responsibility to respect the limited availability and seasonality of rare breeds and their products when they wish to make a purchase.

Of course, The Livestock Conservancy cannot control every seller or consumer, nor be held responsible for their business ethics or personal behavior. We can remind you however, that word travels fast within the rare breed community and can quickly ruin the reputation of both seller and buyer. Serve conservation and promotion of rare breeds well by letting your reputation be made through the integrity of your actions.

Vision Statement

The Livestock Conservancy is a successful, financially secure national organization with regional strength and international influence. It is a leader in breed conservation and supports the development of healthy markets and farm profitability for rare breeds. The Livestock Conservancy works with rare breed stewards and with others to achieve broad public recognition of the value of breed diversity, and promotes its role in conserving the genetic health of endangered breeds of livestock and poultry.

Mission

The mission of The Livestock Conservancy is to protect endangered livestock and poultry breeds from extinction.

Core Values

Animal well-being: The Livestock Conservancy supports production and husbandry practices consistent with the historic purposes and uses of endangered breeds, leading to their good health, longevity, and full value in American agriculture.

Quality and integrity: The Livestock Conservancy practices science-based, genetic diversity conservation and emphasizes research and education to expand and share knowledge and understanding of endangered breeds.

Diversity: The Livestock Conservancy emphasizes diversity of culture, perspectives, and practices in the realization of its mission, which leads to greater opportunities for endangered breeds of livestock and poultry, and for human prosperity.

Collaboration: The Livestock Conservancy encourages and participates in cooperative efforts at all levels of the organization's reach by working individually and collectively among and between all members of the heritage breed production chain including breeders, producers, processors, marketers, and consumers.

Stability: The Livestock Conservancy works to ensure the integrity of endangered breed genetic resources by maintaining a strong alliance with breeders and breed associations, promoting breeder livelihoods and breed resilience, and supporting the development of healthy markets and a strong consumer base.

It's Not Just Numbers

The Livestock Conservancy's Conservation Priority List (CPL) has become a valued and widely used tool for breed conservation. First published in 1986, the CPL serves as an essential source of information for major media, environmentalists, beginning farmers, and animal lovers worldwide.

Updated annually and released in the Spring, the CPL ranks the extinction threat for more than 190 breeds of cattle, chickens, donkeys, ducks, geese, goats, horses, pigs, rabbits, sheep, and turkeys found in the United States. The Livestock Conservancy places particular emphasis on breeds that are uniquely North American - breeds that may be conserved nowhere else, and may otherwise be lost forever.

Livestock populations are estimated by using registration and other information obtained from breed associations, clubs, and individual breeders. Poultry population monitoring includes input from individual breeders and hatcheries. Poultry breeds are selectively evaluated annually, with a more comprehensive poultry census conducted about every five years.

Chickens were added the CPL in 1987; the first turkey census was done in 1997; and the first waterfowl census was published in 2000. Rabbit breeds were added to the CPL in 2006 and are evaluated through show participation in addition to the other factors.

Global partners such as the Rare Breeds Survival Trust and the Domestic Animal Diversity database of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations are also consulted for accurate information on the international (trans-boundary) breeds that are on the CPL.

These annual counts are used to rank the endangerment level of each breed into one of four categories: Critical, Threatened, Watch, and Recovering. Critical breeds face the greatest danger of extinction while Recovering breeds are reaching a point of numeric and genetic security that would allow them to "graduate" from the CPL.

Not only are registration trends evaluated during the annual review, but so is the breed's overall "health." During the year, information is gathered from breeders and breed associations about the increase/decrease in the number of breeders, health of breed organizations, geographic distribution, and breed promotion. If a breed is in a position to move from one category to another – either more or less endangered – the evaluating staff directly contacts breeders to learn more about potential threats or opportunities for that breed to assure that their decisions reflect the actual situation of each individual breed.

Heritage breeds graduate from the CPL when, thanks to numerous dedicated breeders, their population has reached a sustainable, stable level with sufficient genetic diversity. This move requires that there be more than 5,000 annual registrations for the breed in the United States, or an estimated global population of greater than 25,000 animals. Katahdin sheep were the first endangered breed to graduate from the

CPL in 2013; Percheron horses, Nigerian Dwarf goats, Friesian horses, Wyandotte chickens, Orpington chickens, Highland cattle, and Ayrshire cattle followed in succeeding years.

The Livestock Conservancy's CPL website page is visited more often than any other, with thousands of clicks daily. Farmers, ranchers, and shepherds throughout America use this list to guide their stock selections, providing a promotional advantage for breeds on the CPL and helping stabilize their populations through the power of the marketplace.

"Each breed on the Conservation Priority List faces unique challenges, and each can benefit from the efforts of dedicated breeders," explains D. Phillip Sponenberg, DVM, Ph.D, who has served as The Livestock Conservancy's Technical Advisor since its beginning as the American Minor Breeds Conservancy in 1977.

More than 4,000 individuals are raising heritage breed livestock and poultry on farms and ranches throughout America. The Livestock Conservancy is proud to provide the CPL on their behalf and to encourage thousands more to support heritage breed conservation. You can download a color copy of the CPL from The Livestock Conservancy's website at LivestockConservancy.org.

We would like to thank Manna Pro for sponsoring the production of the CPL for a second year. Their generous gift underwrites the hundreds of staff hours required to research, update, and publish these rankings.

2022 CONSERVATION PRIORITY LIVESTOCK BREEDS

Critical (C) Breeds with fewer than 200 annual registrations in the United States and an estimated global population less than 2,000. For rabbits, fewer than 50 annual registrations in the U.S., estimated global population less than 500, fewer than 150 recorded at rabbit shows in the previous 5 years, and 10 or fewer breeders.

Threatened (T) Breeds with fewer than 1,000 annual registrations in the U.S. and an estimated global population less than 5,000. For rabbits, fewer than 100 annual registrations in the U.S., and estimated global population less than 1,000, fewer than 300 recorded at rabbit shows in the previous 5 years, and 11-30 breeders.

Watch (W) Breeds that present genetic or numerical concerns or have a limited geographic distribution, with fewer than 2,500 annual registrations in the U.S. and an estimated global population less than 10,000. For rabbits, fewer than 200 annual registrations in the U.S., estimated global population less than 2,000, fewer than 500 recorded at rabbit shows in the previous 5 years, and 31-60 breeders.

Recovering (R) Breeds once listed in another category, but have exceeded Watch category numbers and still need monitoring. For rabbits, more than 500 recorded at rabbit shows in the last 5 years, and more than 60 breeders.

Breed identity in poultry is challenging. Breeders of all kinds, including exhibition, production, and hatchery, are diligent in breeding standard-bred birds. Other breeders sometimes resort to crossbreeding to achieve their goals and promote their birds as standard-bred. The Livestock Conservancy is unable to validate each breeding program, but buyers are encouraged to ask if birds are purebred and meet breed standards.

Heritage Breeds Manifesto

By Jeannette Beranger

I have been working in the conservation field for nearly 40 years. As I interact with farmers, I have been amazed by their open sharing of knowledge with others who are trying to save the breeds we care about and love. Over time, I have compiled a list of principles that I have learned while visiting farms across our great country. I like to keep them in mind as I do the work of the Conservancy. If you plan to become involved in saving rare breeds, I offer my “heritage breeds manifesto” to guide you as you move forward in your endeavors.

- If it were easy (or cheap), everyone would do it.
- Someone else always knows more than you do, so keep an open mind and give credit to those who have walked the path with the breed before you.

- Do not keep all your eggs in one basket – literally. If your farm is affected by disease, natural disaster, or predators, you may lose years of work if you have not shared your stock’s genetics with other producers.
- Do what is best for your breeding program – don’t keep “pets” or poor specimens. Not every animal is meant to be used for breeding, so have a plan for what you will do with unneeded or unwanted animals. Giving them away as pets is not a viable, long-term option – it is wishful thinking.
- One of the most useful pieces of advice I have learned is that “You get only what you tolerate.” If you have sickly animals that need antibiotics to thrive, or bad-tempered individuals that jump on or headbutt you whenever you enter their space, that is what you will produce.

- Share information about both your successes and your failures to help others who are raising livestock and poultry.
- You will know you are experiencing success when you can walk into your coop or field and see beautiful and productive animals.
- Lastly.... Have fun. If find that you are not enjoying what you are doing, find another hobby or business.

A Must-Have Guide for Livestock and Dog Breeders of all Abilities and Experience Levels

Breeds are fascinating entities. They depend on individual breeders for their continuing existence. Although breeders may come and go, each of them is important and has the potential to make positive contributions to the breed. Multiple factors can guarantee breeders long-term successful management. These include biological aspects, consistent market demand, and the important and sometimes politically charged role of breed associations as the main advocates for breeds today. Strategies for success have been detailed in the first and second editions of Managing Breeds for a Secure Future. The third edition explores this further, providing more strategies that can assure long-term survival for breeds of livestock, poultry, and dogs. Managing Breeds for a Secure Future Third Edition is re-organized to flow better, and has additional chapters on specific protocols for maintaining breeds. It also delves more deeply into rescuing rare populations, through both theory and practice. Updates to the new edition include: biological issues, population analysis, pedigree-based analyses, managing a genetic defect, and specific rescue principles and practices.

AT PREMIER WE OFFER MORE

First hand experience...

Premier has three farms upon which we raise chickens, ducks, geese, sheep, meat goats and horses. And we've worked hard to find staff with roots in agriculture. It matters because we field test our products to determine their strengths (and weaknesses) before we offer them to you. Traditional farmstores don't do this. Let our folks help you make an educated buying decision.

How to contact us:

 Give us a call at 1-800-282-6631

You'll speak with one of our knowledgeable product consultants in Iowa, and not an overseas call center. And we'll support what we sell, long after a product reaches your door.

 Live online chat—
with a real person!

When our consultants aren't on the telephone, they are available via our online chat software. It's a great way to get a quick answer to common questions. (Available during normal office hours.)

 Ask-An-Expert
email service

Premier has partnered with leading veterinarians and small ruminant nutritionists to offer advice on everything from grazing to general sheep care. Visit our website to learn more.

Educational catalogs

Our unique educational booklets can be mailed to your door. Inside you'll find hundreds of pages of innovative, field-tested poultry and livestock husbandry equipment. Includes more "how-tos", helpful tips and practical advice than any other source.

Dartmoor Pony Registry of America

Rare breeds owe their survival to people that care.

The Dartmoor's gentle, even temperament makes them part of any family. Many do double-duty as children's riding ponies and adult's driving ponies. From pasture mate to the show ring, Dartmoors are proven fun and competitive companions.

ADVANCED REPRODUCTIVE TECHNOLOGIES FOR EQUINE BREED CONSERVATION

Second Edition

Extend your knowledge of equine reproductive technologies

This second edition of Advanced Reproductive Technologies for Equine Breed Conservation offers detailed instructions for the collection, storage and use of sperm, oocytes, embryos and tissues from live and recently deceased animals.

This edition also contains a set of Emergency Instruction Sheets for on-farm use in rescuing sperm, tissues and oocytes when time is of the essence, and an expanded Owner's Resource List provides links to reproduction and tissue preservation laboratories, educational articles, videos, and short courses. Veterinary health providers and owners who work with equines can use this manual to become familiar with the numerous options available for saving important genetics.

THE LIVESTOCK CONSERVANCY™

Advanced Reproductive Technologies for Equine Breed Conservation
is available for free download at www.LivestockConservancy.org
Bound copies are also available for $34.95 + s/h.

LIVESTOCK CONSERVANCY MICROGRANTS PROGRAM

2023 Microgrant applications open in the spring.

Learn more and apply at resources/micro-grant-program/](https://livestockconservancy.org/resources/micro-grant-program/)

Conserving genetic resources

We are focused on the conservation of Black Welsh Mountain sheep and maintaining the existing genetic diversity within North America.

We've developed and implemented sustainable systems to conserve the rare and endangered animals that provide so much for us. Our primary goals are the conservation of genetic resources and promotion of sustainable agriculture systems.

The flock at Desert Weyr is double registered with the American Black Welsh Mountain Sheep Association and in the Black Welsh Mountain Sheep Breeders Association in the UK.

Desert Weyr is the only Black Welsh Mountain flock in the world with EBV data through NSIP. Our flock is OPP free. Export Qualified in the Scrapie Flock Certification Program.

We specialize in entirely grass finished, pasture lambed, easy care sheep

What Could You Do With $2000?

Would you improve grazing for your heritage breeds? Expand infrastructure? Add new breeding groups? Diversify genetic lines? Improve predator control?

Previous recipients have used microgrants to install new water lines, add solar power, build rainwater catchments, and upgrade equipment like incubators. They've improved farm safety, revised websites, and collected genetic material for the USDA's National Animal Germplasm Program.

Did you know that if you are already working with at least ONE of the endangered breeds on The Livestock Conservancy's Conservation Priority List (CPL) you are automatically qualified to apply for a Microgrant? Breeders of the livestock and poultry breeds on this list can apply for Microgrants totaling up to $2,000 each in the following categories:

- National Awards
- Youth
- Breed Association

Breed associations and clubs that represent the breeds on the CPL may use microgrants to improve member services and enhance conservation efforts through programs for gene banking and breeder education.

Now in its sixth year, more than $76,000 in competitive Microgrants have been awarded to our most important conservation partners - farmers, ranchers, shepherds, and breed organizations that are doing the hard work, day after day, to steward these genetic treasures.

The generous donors who made these awards possible in 2022 include Louis Eubanks, Bob Gjerdingen, Drs. Pam Hand and Will Hueston, Pat Lusted, the Manton

The Hog Island Sheep Breeders Association is using funds to build a website and hold their first members meeting.

Carter Benini is using funds to expand his Blanc de Hotot breeding program.

Foundation, Premier 1 Supplies, and KW Cages.

The Livestock Conservancy recognizes that heritage breeders are a good investment for conservation, so look around your back yard, farm, or ranch. Evaluate your direct marketing efforts. Then ask yourself, "What if?" What could you do with $2K?

Would a new shelter help reach your production goals? Could some marketing assistance make a difference in your bottom line? Do you need a new scale to better measure growth? Is your current fencing in need of help?

If education, better brooding facilities, agro-tourism, or improved transportation are on your wish list for 2023, mark the calendar and start watching The Livestock Conservancy website for details. The deadline for applications will be in August.

The Must-Have Guide for Saving and Raising Rare Breeds

By D. Phillip Sponenberg, DVM, Jeannette Beranger, and Alison Martin.

An essential guide to heritage breeds, this fully illustrated book explains why conserving rare farm animals is important and shows you how you can raise rare breeds yourself, helping save them and benefiting from them at the same time. 11 species are listed with each breed's specific needs and characteristics so that you can select the one that's right for you.

"A straightforward introduction to the whys and hows of breed conservation."

— CRAIG HANEY, LIVESTOCK FARM DIRECTOR,
 STONE BARN CENTER FOR FOOD AND AGRICULTURE

LivestockConservancy.org

Members & Participants with Rare Breeds Not Listed as Selling Stock or Products

Please note that these members are listed as owning these breeds but not as selling stock or products from them. They may, however, sell stock/products from OTHER breeds.

How to Update Your Listing Online

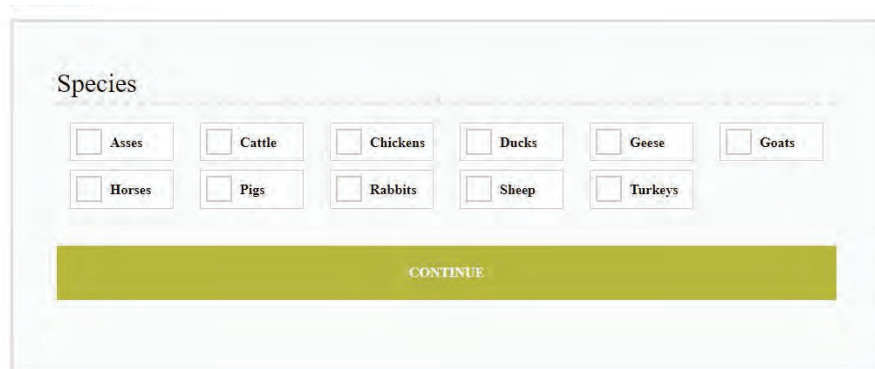

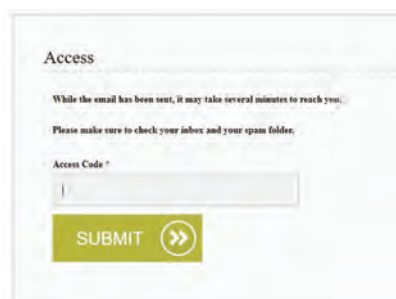

To update information in your account, please visit the Conservancy's website (livestockconservancy.org) and scroll down until you see these items on the left side of the home page. Click on the one labeled, "Update my Contact Info and Products."

From there, you will be taken to the "ACCOUNT UPDATE FORM." From this form you can gain access to your account details. Scroll down the page and complete the information requested in the form. Then click "SUBMIT."

An access code will be sent to the email address you provided. Please check your email's Spam folder if you do not receive the email within a few minutes.

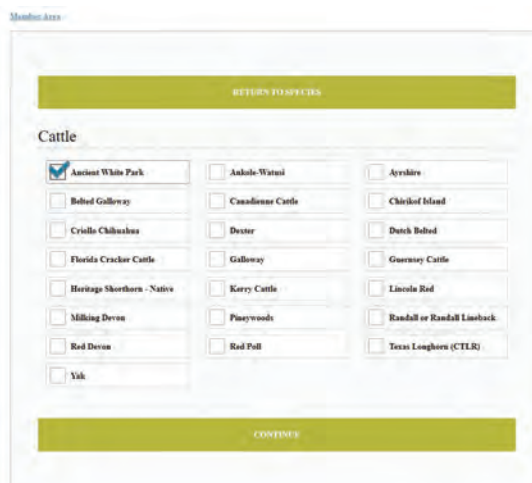

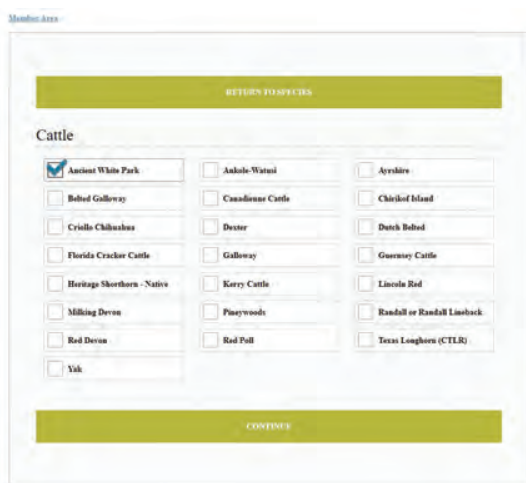

Copy and paste the access code from your email into the "ACCESS CODE" box. Then click "SUBMIT."

On the next page, please check the box for each "SPECIES" you own, then click "CONTINUE."

The next screen will allow you to select each of the "BREEDS" for each species you own.

After selecting breeds, click "CONTINUE" to be taken to the "PRODUCTS" page. Here you can list the products you provide for each breed (breeding stock, hatching eggs, etc). After you complete this section, click "CONTINUE."

The next screen allows you to make changes to your "CONTACT INFORMATION." Be sure all the information is accurate. Scroll to the bottom and click "SUBMIT."

Your updated information may take a few moments to process. Once complete, you'll see a "THANK YOU" screen. Your information will be updated in our database and website. Please note that it may take a few days for the website to be updated with your breeds and products.

Thank you! If you have any questions, please contact us by email (info@livestockconservancy.org) or telephone the office at (919) 542-5704.
